Clubhouse Facelifted - Tees And Greens Rehabilitated

Enlargement of the ninth green is indicated by the pile of muck. The south side of the Clubhouse (1 to 2) is the kitchen. Dining Room Ladies Lounge and rest rooms.

With the facilities of the Clubhouse dining room, cocktail lounge, spacious Assembly Hall, enlarged and renovated locker rooms for both ladies and men - and all of this "weather conditioned" - heat and cold - comfort and convenience one expects at a Golf Club are to be found at our clubhouse.

The complete working of all greens and making them championship size, the rebuilding of all tees and providing a second fairway for each hole, together with the condition of our fairways, makes for an attractive playground for golfers.

Three thousand yards of muck were hauled onto the golf course to enlarge all of the greens and tees. Everglades number one, a hybrid bermuda grass developed at the Experiment Station specially for golf course greens, will be planted in the greens. This is done to promote a good root system in the grass so it will be able to handle the golf traffic, and to allow the water to run off. For Glades residents, and a profitable investment for the City. The Hall is 1,200 square feet, with lowered acoustical ceiling, indirect lighting, newly paneled wainscoting. All proceeds will go to help the Jaycees Little League Baseball Park, according to Bud Wilson, chairman.

The north porch, when enclosed is 13 x 25 with lounge chairs, and is a natural for "after-play sessions." The Pro Shop is 9 x 20, with a display case and counter opening on to the porch. There is access from the Lounge entrance and an outside door.

The dining room, 13 x 35, on the south porch, is served by the kitchen 13 x 18, and a store room 9 1/2 x 10 feet.

The ladies locker, 13 x 18, is completely refinished; it has toilet, lavatory shower and dressing room, with vanity tables and comfortable chairs.

The Men's Locker Room, 13 x 34, has new lockers, floor covered with matting, shower and toilet facilities.

The entire enclosed area has automatic heat and cooling equipment with ducts to critical spots.

St. Peter's Lutheran Church Will Hold Teaching Program

In keeping with the tradition of the Christian Church, years and up in the Bible and the Small Catechism, in preparation for their becoming communicant members of our Church-time 9:00 A. M.

Jesus' last command before ascending into heaven to "fill all things" was that we should "make disciples (teach) all nations." We at St. Peter's obey this command by preaching Christ Crucified and Risen, each Sunday morning in our regular worship service at 10:30 a. m. and in morning devotionals over station WSWN each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at 8:10 a. m.

In following the command of Christ "to continue in My Word," we hold Wednesday evening Bible Classes in the homes of the members. There, we study both the Law and the Gospel, using educational materials of our church, based on Holy Scriptures.

Following this command, and the example of the early church to instruct those that are not yet members, or those who wish to learn more about the church, St. Peter's is starting a Sunday morning Bible Class to be held at 9:30 a. m. This Bible Class will also be a refresher course for the present members of the Church, as it will be based on the Confessions of the Lutheran Church, in accordance with the Bible. The method of approach will be to study the Chief Doctrines of Christianity; the history of the Christian Church, starting at Pentecost, and continuing through the Reformation

Church Of God Revival Begins Sunday

The Belle Glade Church of God will hold a revival meeting beginning Sunday, Sept. 13. Rev. Warren Lee Olet will be the evangelist for this meeting. Rev. Olet served as pastor of Southern Baptist churches in Ill., Virginia and Maryland, for seven years and one half years, before becoming associated with the Church of God.

"In the past several years, many ministers and churches have sincerely examined and studied the Pentecostal experience. Glossolalia or the speaking of the unknown tongue, as the spirit gives utterance, an experience once found almost exclusively in the Full Gospel or Pentecostal Churches," Rev. Sindle said.

Some time ago, Life Magazine featured an article called, "Third Force," in Religion discussing the phenomenal growth of the number of people that have this experience. On May 17, 1964, the Saturday Evening Post also featured a story on Latter Day outpouring of the Holy Spirit, according to Acts 2:4, and its impact on many denominational churches.

Rev. Sindle, pastor of the Belle Glade Church of God, states that he would like very much for our community to become better acquainted with our Pentecostal neighbors, and their beliefs.

Glossolalia, or the speaking in tongues, has crossed many denominational lines. Hundreds of ministers and laymen of the Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Reformed as well as many other churches, have received this experience.

Pastor Sindle urges everyone to attend the coming revival and perhaps realize the greater spiritual depths a Christian may receive.

Eye Examinations Advised For All School Children

Parents, schools are reopening for classes. Are the eyes of your child ready for them? Approximately one of four children need eye care they are not receiving. The Florida Council for the Blind, a state agency, says every child should have an eye examination before entering school for the first time. Periodical re-examinations should follow throughout school years.

Protect your child's eyes. Instinct him in how to read properly to sit upright when studying, with the light from over his shoulder. For information on eyes, eye care and eye diseases, write the Florida Council for the Blind at offices in Tampa, Pensacola, Jacksonville, Gainesville, Daytona Beach, West Palm Beach and Miami.

No Surplus US Food If Ships Cuba Bound Says Rogers' Law

The House of Representatives has adopted an amendment sponsored by Congressman Paul Rogers of Florida's 6th Congressional District halting surplus U. S. food being sent to foreign countries allowing their ships to go to the island of Cuba. "No longer will a foreign country be able to do business with Uncle Sam and Fidel Castro at the same time," Congressman Rogers said.

Rogers' amendment was added to legislation allowing the U. S. to sell excess wheat, grain dairy products, and other agricultural commodities to needy nations overseas. These commodities have been subsidized directly or indirectly by tax funds through government payments.

Congressman Rogers said, "By selling this subsidized food to a country shipping to Cuba the U. S. taxpayer simply comforts one of Castro's friends."

"No friend of Castro's is a friend of ours!" Rogers said. The Florida Congressman then listed countries receiving surplus foods from the U. S. government and allowing ships to call at Castro's island at the same time.

"Communist Yugoslavia is high on the list," Rogers said.

September 15th the people of Belle Glade will "hire" two men to be "employed" to help run the City Government of this City.

The very fact that five, well qualified local citizens, have applied for the job should be appreciated by all.

Communist citizens everywhere have no choice. Their officials and office holders are picked by a central committee, which is also selected by a small group. The people have nothing to say on the matter.

Here in America, we the people, do have a choice. We can vote for who we please.

This great privilege is something that too many of us take for granted and sometimes we fail to appreciate.

Republican Candidate for Governor of Florida, Charles R. Holley, of St. Petersburg, Florida, along with William Post, of Intrustus Company, his administrative assistant, and Edwin H. Sheppard, from Lake Worth, Palm Beach County Chairman for Holley, campaigned in Belle Glade, and the Glades area last week and had lunch at the Dixiana Cafe, and shook hands and exchanged greetings with many local residents.

More and more authoritative evidence concerning the use and value of pesticides in a variety of enterprises is appearing. And it is effectively dissipating fear that these chemicals must constitute a critical danger to wildlife and the public health.

Take, for example, the results made by the managing foresters of one of the country's principal timber companies. The company owns 3.6 million acres of timberland. Pesticides are one of the tools used to counter the devastating effects of forest pests. The dangers of misuse are recognized. There have been unfortunate incidents — but these failures, in his words, " . . . were the birth pains of forest spraying." Out of them came new knowledge and a new attitude. "The result that 'the forester's' record is one of careful and effective use of chemicals is irrefragable."

He also points out that forest pest problems differ from those in agriculture, and the chemicals used and the method of application often reflect this difference. But, in every field where pesticides play a role the principle is the same. The hazards are known — and known too are techniques needed to eliminate the hazards. The fact that this was not always so is a standard — and it would be a pity indeed — if it were not charged led to a flood of laws and regulations which, no matter how sincerely intended, would create problems far more severe than any they were intended to correct. To quote once again, "We must know more about pesticides rather than use them less."

Our agricultural abundance depends, in large measure, on the proper use of pesticides. We need the health of our forests, too. Reason based on increasing knowledge, not emotion based on fright — must govern that use.

Civilian in Peace, Soldier in War — of security and honor for three centuries I have been the custodian, I am the Guard.

I was with Washington in the dim forests, fought the wily warrior, and watched the dark night bow to the morning — At Concord's bridge, I fired the faithful shot heard 'round the world — At Valley Forge, I bled the winter's cold — I was with the General at the Bunker Hill — My footprints marked the snows that bridged the icy Delaware — I pulled the weary soldiers on the march — I was the Guard — I pulled the trigger that loosed the long rifle's havoc at New Orleans — These things I know — I was there! — I saw both sides of the war between the States — I was there! — The hill at San Juan felt the fury of my charge — The far plains and mountains of the Philippines echoed to my shout — At the Mexican border I stood — I am the Guard — The dark forest of the Pacific with its warring — Its horrors — Chateau Thierry crumbled to my feet — I was there! — The arches of victory I marched in legend — I was there! — I am the Guard. I bowed briefly on the grim Corregidor, then saw the light of liberation shine on the faces of my comrades — Through the jungle and on the beaches, I fought the enemy, bled, battered, and broke him — I raised our banner to the serene air on Okinawa — I was the Guard — Over Normandy's beaches — I was there! — I am the Guard — I was there! — Paralled I made my stand, — I flew MIG ALY — I was there — I am the Guard — I soldiered in war, civilian in peace — I am the Guard — I was at Johnstown, where the raging waters boomed down he valley — I cradled the crying child in my arms and saw her terror leave her eyes — I moved through smoke and flame to Texas City — The stricken knew the comfort of my skill — I trod the west and through the frozen drifts I pleaded to rescue the marooned — I have faced frozen perils, quenched the typhoon, and the horror of the hurricane and flood — I know — I was there! — I am the Guard — I have brought more abundant, a fuller, a finer life to our youth — Whenever strong arm and valiant spirit must defend the Nation, in peace or war, wherever a child cries, or a woman weeps in time of disaster, there I stand — I am the Guard — For three centuries I am the custodian, I am the soldier — I am the Guard.

—Reprinted courtesy the National Guard Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Herbert Hoover, in a statement issued on the eve of the 90th birthday, gave his reason for the unrivaled abundance that characterizes American life: "The key, I am convinced, is that among us there is greater freedom for the individual man and woman than in any other great nation . . . And the product of our freedom is the stimulation of our energies, initiative, ingenuity and creative faculties. Freedom is the open window through which shines the sunlight of the human spirit and of human dignity. It is the preservation of these moral and spiritual qualities, and with God's grace, will come further progress for our country."

This quiz is made up of questions of general interest asked at five leading libraries across the country.

When the mint tied his tie and put on his coat, he also took the dime from his dresser. On his way to work, he used the dime to buy a paper. The newsboy spent the dime for a cup of coffee at a shop where the proprietor gave the dime in change to a man who bought a pack of cigarettes. This man left the dime as a tip when he bought lunch and the waitress spent it for Bobby pins that afternoon at the dime store. The dime store gave it in change to a woman who bought a pair of sunglasses and she spent it for a roll of mints at the candy shop. The man in the candy shop gave the dime in change to a man who bought his wife a box of chocolates.

In a single day, the dime served as a medium of exchange in eight transactions. But there it stopped. For the man who bought the chocolates is not only a thoughtful husband, he is also a dime-saver. When he got home, he dropped the dime in a cigar box in his dresser drawer where it will remain — along with 57 earlier dimes — and more to come.

Is the dime-saver doing wrong? Not in the usual sense. In fact, he is practicing thrift through saving, a generally accepted virtue. But today our country is in the throes of a coin shortage. Somebody claims this shortage is being caused by dime-savers, at the dresser-drawer depot, the piggy-bank balance and the sugar-bowl supply are ancient and widespread customs and account for literally billions of coins now desperately needed to use the needs of retail trade.

PB Jr. College Offering New Courses

A study of the major religions of the world is being offered at Palm Beach Junior College by the Social Science Department.

The new course seeks to introduce the 11 major religions of the past and present.

Dr. Sidney H. Davies, instructor in religion, stated that the class would seek an evaluation of the function of religion as a universal feature in every human culture.

The study begins with Brahminism (3000 B. C.) in India and continues to the present day religion of Japan, Shogakkaiki.

Dr. Samuel S. Bostotto, department chairman, cognizant of recent events which have indicated a growing concern in the area of moral and spiritual education and the aspects of the Supreme Court action banning Bible reading and state prescribed prayers, stated that many of these points will be clarified.
